The Online School of Music Industry Studies project aims to provide international training and certification to prepare future participants for success in the contemporary music industry.

A total of 90 participants from the 15 Caribbean islands will be shortlisted and recruited for the programme each year, including established and emerging music industry professionals such as artist managers, producers, booking agents, engineers, and entrepreneurs.

These participants will benefit from innovative interactive digital training, in line with current trends, which they will be able to apply to their future initiatives in the region. In this way, they will help to strengthen the creative and cultural ecosystem in their respective country.

Finally, this training will also enable beneficiaries to develop their organisational management skills, as well as acquiring knowledge of effective leadership and strategic planning.
