The project 'Strengthening Artistic Diffusion Capacity (Dycadia)' aims to promote artistic creation by developing a professional diffusion network in Burkina Faso, in a context where the five associative organizations of the «Collar of Diffusion Scenes (COSDI)» network face difficulties in diffusing shows in a sustainable and continuous manner.

In this regard, the offer of artistic creations has been better structured through the development of management tools including a procedural manual, a quality charter, and an operational monitoring and evaluation framework.

Furthermore, the administrative and technical capacities of the personnel of COSDI network members have been strengthened through training: in administration and diffusion management for administrators, and in electricity and safety for technicians. The material and logistical capacities of the network have been reinforced through the production of five sets of technical and safety equipment.

Finally, artistic creation for audiences distant from cultural offerings now benefits from a more sustainable long-term programming, with the implementation of five shows comprising 50 performances in total, with 10 performances for each. These productions thus become more visible to the general public.
