The 'Foto School' project aims to contribute to the visual education of primary and secondary school students.

Within this framework, the state's promotion policy of art in schools and colleges has been supported. Civic culture and image appreciation, rooted in local cultural values, have been strengthened among students through visual education.

Furthermore, the skills of education stakeholders (teachers, school administration, educators, etc.) in visual arts teaching have been enhanced. This represents a new addition to their careers, complementing their traditional pedagogical skills.

Books and photographic materials have been provided to partner schools, and thematic exhibitions have been organized within them twice a year, with their active involvement, to reinforce the achievements of school mediation.

Additionally, thematic conferences in partnership with schools have been held on the role and importance of photography in students' civic and moral education.

Finally, photography contests have been established to foster a love for photographic images among children.
